

HYDE-PARK COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

Hyde-Park Community Development Corporation (HPCDC) was established in 1990 by a concerned group of minority community members in order to address the needs of low and moderate-income families through employment and training opportunities in the construction trade. HPCDC has formed partnership with banks, legislators, foundations, the City of Memphis, the State of Tennessee and the federal government, all of which have played a significant role in making the HPCDC a viable undertaking.

It is the mission of HPCDC to identify emerging community needs and create innovative collaborations that align the quality of life to successfully meet those needs, with a focus towards construction and renovation of single and multi-family homes and providing first-time home ownership for low-moderate income families in the HPCDC area. Since November 1994, under the guidance of the new Executive Director, HPCDC has broadened both its public and private support, and is making significant progress toward meeting its goals of community revitalization.

HYDE-PARK COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

In October 2001, the City of Memphis awarded HPCDC as a Community Housing Development Organization (CHDO) designation and awarded capacity building funds. This designation by the City of Memphis was in answer to the community cries of revitalization for the area, from the slum and blight it had deteriorated too.

The capacity funds will assist in hiring staff for the CDC and provide training in the area of housing development, board development, and financial management. We look forward to providing affordable housing, community service projects, safety, crime prevention, and business & economic development opportunities to our community.
